Romantic Drama Of The Orient

The high production quality, the accomplished performances given by the leading players and supporting cast, the intelligent manner in which the intimately delicate love drama had been adapted and the music, make "The Garden of Allah" which shows at the Elite Theatre, Friday and Saturday of this week, one of the most beautiful and outstanding pictures of the year. Two troubled souls meet at the edge of the Sahara Desert, legendary Garden of Allah. The man yielding to the temptations of the flesh has broken his sacred vows as a monk and fled his cloistered Trappist monastery. The woman is seeking an ethereal happiness which only God and she know is in heart. Together they come under the exotic fascination of the Orient as their mortal hearts call to each other, and they marry. The beauty of their love, portrayed in sequences that are the ultimate of good taste and dramatic propriety, tumbles into the dust of tragedy as the secret of the man's identity and past history is revealed. There is no bitterness in the heart of husband or wife as the man, confessing his sin to God, cleanses his soul and is surrendered to his mistress by the woman. Both are beyond the horizon of temporal existence, a greater happiness in another life. Mr. and Mrs. Bill Bitty, ar, were in the city for a few days last week on business.

During one of the heavy showers last week Messrs. Koeman and Cliff Church could not control their cars, with the result that both cars were badly damaged in a collision at the corner of Queen street and Fifth avenue. Some insurance was carried.

Board Quits For Lack of Credit

There will be no ball insurance in Alberta this year because the provincial government has been unsuccessful in trying to induce the banks to continue lending money for this purpose. A letter from A. H. Torvell, manager of the Hall Insurance Board at Calgary, says: "We have reluctantly to advise you that we have been unable to obtain a line of credit for the current year. This will mean, of course, that insurance cannot be written; and we would ask you to kindly make this as generally known as possible in your municipal district at once. It is altogether likely that the Board will be kept in existence. The bank is of the opinion that the organization should be kept alive, so that, when our financial position improves we can continue operations." In answer to a query as to when he expected ball insurance could be resumed, the secretary of the municipality said: "They will be able to start again when taxes are being paid."

Edgerton Man Passes Away

There passed away in the local hospital on Wednesday last, following a brief illness from pneumonia, Mr. Sam Griebek at the age of 54 years. The deceased came to Canada in 1910 from Norway where he was born and farmed in the Edgerton district ever since. He was well known and highly esteemed by all with whom he came in contact and his untimely passing came as a great shock to his friends and neighbors. He leaves to mourn besides his loving wife, three children and his parents, two sisters and a brother residing in Norway, two brothers residing in Edgerton and one sister in the States. The funeral was held at the United Church, Edgerton, with the Rev. J. P. Suttill in charge. Interment was made in the Rosedale cemetery.

COUNCIL HAS DIFFERENT IDEA OF PLANT VALUE

All members of Council were present at the adjourned session which was called for Monday last week, and at which meeting the report by the chairman of the Gas Committee (Coun. Link) was read and most fully discussed. On May 21st last your Chairman received a letter from the Town's counsel, Neil Maclean, K.C., containing information to the effect that the value set by the Board of Public Utilities on the Wainwright Gas Company's Transmission Line and Distribution system, was $56,022.00. This figure seems to have been arrived at by the Board by simply taking the originally stated actual cost of the entire system, approximately $90,000, adding the various amounts allowed the Wainwright Gas Company by the Board in the way of contractor's profits, financing charges, promotion fees, etc., bringing a total of $146,022.00, and then deducting roughly one-third to the town. I (your chairman) wrote the Premier on May 26th, to see if it were not possible to have this decision reviewed and an amicable found for the Town of Wainwright, a copy of which letter is attached hereto. I drove to Irma and interviewed our member Mr. Masson who kindly consented to arrange an interview for me with the Premier on May 27th last. I consulted with Mayor Middlemas, who, recognizing the necessity of immediate action, requested Councilor Linkstone and myself to accompany him to Edmonton to discuss the matter with the Premier. The interview took place at 2.30 p.m. on the date mentioned the whole matter was thoroughly analysed, and the Premier stated that it would be necessary to give it further careful consideration, and for that reason he would arrange a meeting of the Legislative Council the following week and let our delegation know the date and time on the following Monday, On Monday, May 31st, the Premier phoned to me and advised that he would expect us to meet the Legislative Council on Thursday, June 3rd at 2.30 p.m. Mayor Middlemas, Councilor Linkstone and I attended this meeting, then present being the Premier, Cabinet Ministers and Judge Carpenter. Questioned by the Premier, Judge Carpenter stated that he quite agreed that the Town of Wainwright should be granted the right to make a debenture issue for the purpose of installing its own system if it were not successful in purchasing the Wainwright Gas Company's entire plant at a price which the Town was prepared to offer. The Judge further stated that the Town was not bound in any way by the decision arrived at by the Board of Public Utilities, it having been made without prejudice to either party. I would like to express my sincere thanks and appreciation to the Premier, the members of the legislative council and to our member Mr. Masson, for kind consideration and fair treatment of the Town of Wainwright, in connection with its Gas Utility problem, and would recommend that the Council support a resolution instructing the secretary to write these gentlemen enclosing a copy of the resolution. Before concluding this report I would like to make the following recommendations:—The Secretary be instructed to write Mr. Campbell, President of the Wainwright Gas Company, offering him on behalf of the town the sum of $27,500.00 for the entire transmission line, distribution system and all the appliances, tools and equipment pertaining thereto, with a copy thereof to the Premier, and to Neil Maclean, K.C., town's counsel, and to the Board of Public Utilities. The secretary be instructed to write the Board of Public Utilities requesting that authorization be given to the town with as little delay as possible for the issue of debentures.

NEW HIGHWAY PROJECTS ARE ANNOUNCED

Commencement of construction on a highway from Edmonton to St. Paul, as part of a comprehensive northern Alberta highways program, was announced on Saturday by Hon. W. A. Fallow, minister of public works, who declared that the program announced was incomplete and that other projects would be announced in the near future. "The projects I am announcing today are those that have been definitely decided and the rest of the program will be completed as soon as possible," he said. The Minister announced that the highway from McLennan to Peace River would be gravelled and that the grade west of McLennan on the south shore of Lake Minnawong would be raised. Other works to be carried out are: Commencement of construction of the Edmonton-Willington highway. Commencement of construction of the St. Paul-Vegreville highway by way of the Durney bridge. Graveling and reconditioning of the highway from the new bridge across Lesser Slave River, 12 miles east of the lake and westward along the shore of Lesser Slave Lake. Maintenance of the main highway from Grande Prairie to the junction with the new Whitecourt road at Valleyview, this road being taken over from the municipality. Graveling of the main highway from Grande Prairie to the airport. Improvement of the south side of the hill at Rungevaan Crossing. Take over the Wapiti ferry. Improvement of highway to Grouard, at the west end of Lesser Slave Lake. AND YET NOTHING IS SAID OF THE COMPLETION OF HIGHWAY 14—WAINWRIGHT TO THE EAST BOUNDARY.

Pool Gets Approval Over Wheat Board

REGINA.—With a score of proposals for extending grain markets and altering marketing methods before it, the Turgerson royal grain commission stands adjourned until the autumn. SITTING for 71 days in Winnipeg, Saskatoon, Regina, Edmonton, Calgary and Vancouver, the commission heard 136 witnesses and received 499 exhibits and heard about 2,360,000 words spoken into the evidence. Last week's major witness was James R. Murray, Winnipeg chairman of the Canadian Wheat Board since Dec. 2, 1935. Mr. Murray said Canada must purchase the products of other countries if she is to sell her wheat. Among other witnesses for the board, he said, were increased production in normally importing countries and disinclination of Canada to meet the competition of other exporting countries in recent years. Canada's normal production could not be marketed abroad, no matter what the marketing system, unless trade relations with principal wheat importing countries were improved. Every market counted in saving grain, he declared. Advertising and publicity work now being carried out by the board should be taken over by a federal institute endowed by the wheat government and free of politics. He hoped the inquiry would make some recommendation for development of overseas markets. (The policy of the board he headed, said Mr. Murray, was to offer wheat for sale on world markets continuously as such quantities as the board could take reasonably. The board sold wheat to any and all when it considered the price satisfactory. Declaring a compulsory board handling all the wheat crop and with the grain exchange closed was plain to him Mr. Murray said he was quite prepared to see the experiment tried; but was certain it would fail. The wheat board as at present constituted could not function successfully, he said. There was no reason, he said, why the open market and futures method of trading and producers co-operative wheat pools on a contract basis could not satisfactorily sell the Canadian crop. Some supervision of the grain exchange should be undertaken he added. In the event of recurrence of low prices, the government should lead assistance to producers. George H. Melvor, Winnipeg, a member of the wheat board, detailed the board's advertising and publicity campaign to develop Canadian wheat sales in the United Kingdom. The commission also viewed a motion picture describing farming in Western Canada, and showing the trade routes to Britain. Describing the campaign as the "first real effort" to sell to the consumer the baker and British bread eater—Mr. Melvor said co-operation was being given by British interests although some millers had offered resistance. Friendly reception had been accorded the board's representatives and the objectives of tying in the campaign with British-directed bread campaigns. George Edwards, Regina, spokesman for the On-To-The-Bay association, urged greater use of the Hudson Bay route through Churchill, Man., for wheat exports. Neil McTaggart of Gull Lake, former M.P. for Maple Creek, urged a guaranteed minimum price to protect against a "price crash"; a vigorous sales policy, tariff changes fostering use of low grade wheat as livestock feed and urged the commission go overboard during its inquiry.

Resume of Life New Liberal Chief

E. L. Gray, the new Liberal leader who succeeds Mr. Justice W. R. Howson, who resigned 15 months ago on his elevation to the supreme court bench, was born in Grey County, Ontario, but came to the west as a boy with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel W. Gray, pioneer homesteaders in the district of Weyburn, Sask. Educated in the public schools of Weyburn, Sask., and Regina, he graduated in 1904. He joined the Ontario department of agriculture in 1907. Three years later he was promoted to the position of provincial field crops commissioner and in 1934 deputy minister of municipal affairs for Alberta. He resigned in 1935 after the Albertan government took office. Mr. Mike Roth is busy in the erection of a new home on his farm at Pabayan.

Record Attendance At Institute Meeting

The Women's Institute met at the home of Mrs. Jack Chynoweth on Tuesday, June 8th, with record attendance of 56 members and visitors. After usual business, Mrs. W. T. Brunker gave a splendid report of the convention held in Calgary in May and one or two members from the visiting Institutes also gave a short talk on the same subject; all stressing the fact that conventions are a great help in that they make one realize that each individual Institute is but a small cog in a great wheel of activity and it's the small numbers when joined as a whole that make such activities possible. The contest of word-making was won by Mrs. Wright, the prize being donated by Mrs. Hannah. The lucky number prize went to Mrs. Hansen. A small gift of souvenir china was given to each grandmother present as a memento of coronation year. A piano solo was played by Miss D. Chynoweth and a reading given by Mrs. Smart. An delightful luncheon was served by Mrs. Chynoweth and several helpers, and the meeting closed with the singing of God Save the King. Mr. Bert Stinson met with a night accident to his hand last week while at his work on the water well for the Battiewell Oil Ltd.

COUNSEL

An ancient proverb, found in the Bible is that "in multitude of counsellors there is safety." Like many other bits of ancient wisdom, this one is often neglected or scoffed at. Men like to set up their own individual judgment as superior to that of the public. And too many are willing to let one man do the thinking for everybody.

But as in the case of much of the wisdom of the ages, modern scientific research proves that the old ones were right. An interesting series of tests among college students, conducted by Dr. Herbert Gurnes of Western Reserve University, showed that the combined judgment of the group on any question was always more nearly accurate than the judgment of all but the shiest.

To me this is interesting as another demonstration of the soundness of our democratic system. Whenever public questions of vital importance have been referred to the people for their collective judgment, their answer has been right. Most of our troubles arise from letting a few do the thinking for the many.

SEA

I don't get out on salt water as often as I would like to. There is a fascination about the sea, which almost every human being feels. The mystery as to what its depths hide, and the tremendous power of its waves, make even a trip down the coast something to stir the emotions.

As I write this I have just landed in Florida after a voyage from New York. For the first time in several years I have renewed my acquaintance with the flying fish and the porpoise. I kept an eye out for whales, but it is a little early for whales in northern waters. Last time I took this cruise in July, we ran through a school of whales off the Jersey coast.

Travel by sea was never more comfortable and less expensive than it is now, nor safer. I know of no more restful and healthful vacation than to take a round-trip cruise to southern ports. I recommend it to everyone who can spend $50 or more for annual relaxation.

FLORIDA

winter mecca I had not visited Florida for ten years until now. It is a different place from what it was in the height of the frenzied real estate boom. It still has the almost-perfect year-round climate which makes it the Winter Mecca for a million or so tourists, but the real Florida has developed important industries and agricultural production beyond all belief.

I saw huge dredges in the St. Johns river, as our ship entered the harbor of Jacksonville. They were digging oyster shells from the bottom of the water and loading them on barges. I asked about that, when I got ashore, and was taken to see the factory where these ancient shells, which have accumulated over millions of years, are converted into the raw material of eggshells for the whole world!

They grind them into "grit" for chicken feed to supply the lime the hens need for their eggshells. They were loading 2,000 tons on a ship for England when I was there. There are enough shells in the St. Johns to supply the world's needs for a century.

CLIMATE

Invigorating When the thermometer goes above 80 in the North we call it a hot day. Life is uncomfortable. An 80 degree temperature in Florida is just a nice pleasant, Summer breeze. There is always a cooling breeze, and there is really something invigorating in the atmosphere.

One does not get very far away from salt water and sea-breezes anywhere in Florida. Indeed, the Florida beaches, both on the Atlantic side and all along the Gulf coast from Key West clear to Pensacola are becoming increasingly popular as Summer resorts for people who live in the interior of Georgia, Alabama and Mississippi.

I have been around the world a good deal, and sampled almost every kind of climate there is. I haven't found any where the average of year-round comfort is as high as it is in Florida all things considered.

PROSPERITY

from paper One does not have to be in the South very long these days, to realize that the whole South Atlantic and Gulf region of the United States is riding high on a new wave of prosperity. I have talked with business men and bankers from many Southern states in the past few days. Every one has a story to tell of new and profitable industries, better prices for Southern farm products, a widespread feeling of "good times."

The biggest thing in the whole South is the utilization of the quick-growing "alash" pine for paper making. A dozen paper mills, costing several millions each, have been

CRIPPLING OF CHILDREN (No. 1)

The subject of crippling of children is one of much interest. It has become the entire interest of societies of men and women the partial interest of others such as services and other men's clubs and, altogether, considerable money and much individual and collective effort is being spent in order to make the life of the crippled child more happy and comfortable. This is all to the good, but one thinks that there is a much wider field of accomplishment in this area. It is vital, in addition, that we lessen the crop of cripples. What are the causes of crippling in children?

The chief causes are: tuberculosis, infantile paralysis and rickets. These afflictions contribute most of the cripples seen here and elsewhere. A minimum amount of crippling comes from accidents of one kind and another.

Tuberculosis, the greatest of all causes of crippling, through the medium of hip and other joint disease, might be prevented if the public would utilize the preventive measures available. The bovine type of the affection, that comes to little children through the avenue of raw milk, would be immediately throttled by universal pasteurization, or boiling of all milk fed to children. The human form of tuberculosis, by far the more frequent type, is a greater problem. Its eradication involves firstly, the finding of the children already affected and their suitable care, a care no greater than any child requires; secondly, the tracing of the sources of infection, usually a member of the family from which the infected child comes; and thirdly, elimination of the source.

Probably the best plan whereby to discover the children infected with tuberculosis, is to follow that pursued in the state of Massachusetts where more than 100,000 school children have already been checked by means of the simple tests known to every doctor. The results showed the proportion of tuberculosis infected children to be what is found in most countries, namely, about 22 per cent. This does not mean that 22 per cent of the children are doomed to have tuberculosis. Indeed, the vast majority of the infected will completely recover if placed under proper conditions of living, the sources of infection having been removed. Any plan looking to the eradication of human tuberculosis, must, to be effectual, so deal with the sources of infection as to render these incapable of doing further damage. In a word, the open case of tuberculosis must be separated from the well persons in the family. This is best accomplished by treatment in a special institution such as the sanatorium, where the individual has appropriate treatment and learns how to take care of himself, when he is well enough and safe enough to return to his home. This, of course, costs money, but it will prove to be much cheaper in the long run than the institutional and other care of the many contacts who may develop tuberculosis through the neglect of existing cases. Consideration of the remedial cause of crippling is reserved for a further article.

The World of Wheat

H. G. L. Strange,
Director, Research Department,
Searle Grain Company, Ltd.

The quality of Canadian wheat is in such was the fear expressed in 1895 by some who observed how rapidly the production of wheat was expanding throughout the Prairie Provinces, and how so many new varieties—some quite inferior—were being brought in and seeded by farmers.

What could be done to assure that the sterling wheat, Red Fife, the veritable foundation of wheat quality, could be kept true-to-variety? Dr. James W. Robertson, then Dominion Commissioner of Agriculture, set his mind to work. He studied the seed and crop improvement system of other countries, and finally conceived an idea that he thought might be suitable for Canada.

So in 1898 he put aside one hundred dollars of his own private funds in order to encourage boys and girls on their fathers' farms to pick the best heads of the standing crop of wheat and oats; the heads to be sent to Ottawa. Prizes were awarded for the best collection of true-to-variety heads.

Out of this plan soon came an organization that has steadily and continuously, for nearly thirty years, assisted in maintaining the high quality of Canadian wheat and other grains on growers' markets—The Canadian Seed Growers' Association.

The following factors have tended to raise prices: Germany again purchasing Australian wheat—Official Indian wheat estimate reduced by 25 million bushels—Possibility war again looms in Europe—Average of U.S. private winter wheat estimates 649 million bushels compared with 652 million a month ago—Canadian shippers buying back Dutch barley sales.

Following factors have tended to lower price:—Indicated increase of 10 per cent in Northern Hemisphere wheat acreage excluding Russia and China—France exports wheat to Germany and Spain—More favorable European weather and crop advances—Good rains in some parts of North America—World supply of summer oranges plentiful. Large lemon crop in Sicily.

This Week in Washington

Washington. — President Roosevelt recently added what is expected to be the final major lead to the growing burden of legislative duties still before Congress at this session when he sent his national planning message up. With this message, the "must" program (which the President calls his "desired" program) now appears to be complete.

He requests Congress to set up, at this session, seven regional planning agencies or administrations like the Tennessee Valley Authority, leaving an eighth—the Mississippi River Commission—as it now stands.

In a message couched in broad terms, the President avoided a sharp conflict on methods that has grown up among his supporters. A bill to carry out the message—in an interpretation of its meaning—was immediately introduced by Senator G. W. Norris (Ind.) of Nebraska, giving the regional agencies wide authority over the development of hydro-electric power.

Another bill, widely different in that it leaves to already established agencies of government all aspects of the President's planning program, except power, is expected to be introduced shortly in the House. But this second bill leaves the power program approximately as in the Norris bill, according to anticipations of its terms. Thus, the drive started fits again with President Roosevelt's generally aggressive program of the present session, although in the Chief Executive's message, the full implications of his power policy were not revealed.

Senator Norris takes occasion in his bill to attempt to forestall the litigation which thus far has seriously hampered work of TVA.

His bill seeks to prevent the issuance of any injunction by district courts, enjoining any of the activities of the different authorities, except upon the giving of a bond which will compensate not only the authority, but also municipalities or farm organizations which may be injured or deprived of profits because of such injunction.

Every municipality and farm organization that would be affected by any such injunction is permitted to intervene and the bond given prior to the issuance of such injunction must be in an amount "sufficient to protect such authority, municipalities and farm organizations from any damage by the loss of revenue, or otherwise, which may be sustained on account of such injunction," as Senator Norris explains his purpose.

The legal handicaps which now bind TVA were shown only on Monday in three Supreme Court decisions all of which prolong the interminable legal battle put up by power companies seeking to prevent its activities. The Norris proposal seeks to free them from making such attempts, by imposing a possible financial penalty.

Thus this national planning message and its accompanying legislation takes its place with the wages and hours bill, the farm bills, as dynamite placed behind the Supreme Court bill.

stand in respect to your sub-

not rely on the task of con-

If you are in arrears the necessary to remind our read-

DOCTOR
By JOHN JOSEPH GAINES, M.D., F.R.C.P.

SUMMER FIRST AID

The day's outing for Mamma and the kiddies... Over on the creek four miles west. Shade and grass; trees and flowers; and—emergencies for Mamma. She should be prepared.

For the little Bob, he will drive and he's on the sunny side of the Ford; get sunburn on the left ear, it'll look like a wheat cake right off the griddle.

Then Junior, always an explorer, picks up a locust thrown in his most prominent muscle—it penetrates half an inch.

And Charlie, fond of butterflies, gets stung on the upper lip by a new species that she finds buzzing over the burning bloom.
Little Mary insists on carrying the lunch basket many times too heavy for her—tips over a bump—takes off a section of epidermis from one fat knee.

Tom, the profound, none too energetic and peppery—picks up at least a pint of chiggers—and they ALL depend on Mamma for first aid. All run to Mamma when in distress.

On that day's outing take along a kit containing (1) scissors; (2)
a roll of clean adhesive plaster; (3) a bottle of iodine; (4) clean muslin or gauze for bandages; (5) a splinter force; (6) jar of carbolic vaseline; (7) a can of antiseptic dusting powder. Don't rely on liquid vegetable antiseptics—most of them are powerless for killing germs.
If a cut finger, let it bleed awhile; then pour iodine into the cut and around it. Dry quickly and apply adhesive plaster to close wound. Treat "skinned" abrasions much the same, except use carbolic vaseline on gauze next the wound.

For the thorn in Junior's flesh—pull it out with splinter forceps;
soak the puncture with iodine; cover with adhesive. Treat the chiggers and sunburn at home. Soap and cold cream applied freely.

CHEMISTRY AIDS
IN WEED CONTROL

Calling chemists to aid in the destruction of weeds on the farm is regarded by some as an artificial substitute for good cultural practices,
and, says B. Leslie Emalie, this opinion is too often justified. Yet there are weeds which seem to resist all attempts at their control by ordinary means and, like desperate diseases require desperate remedies. Dependent on circumstances the choice of a chemical herbicide may be made from a wide variety of substances.
Sodium chlorate, is one which successfully kills vegetation wherever applied and inhibits plant life for a year afterwards. Consequently this substance is applicable only on areas
such as the sides of railway tracks,
hard tennis courts walks and driveways. But not shared by the farmer who excludes and sometimes an inappropriate use of this substance may be prevented from spreading by a timely spraying with sodium chlorate.

The artist may rave about the riot of colour displayed by the fields of the countryside in June, an enthusiasm not shared by the farmer who deplores the golden hue of the wild mustard bloom which dominates
the field and forestalls a serious diminution in yield of grain. Wild mustard is difficult to eradicate, as the seed may lie dormant in the soil
for years awaiting conditions favourable to its germination. The weed is a real problem in Ontario
and in many sections of the Prairie Provinces where it is spreading rapidly. Attempts to control it by spraying with a dilute solution of sulfuric acid, when the field is rough about four inches high, have met with some success experimentally,
but special machinery is required,
and sulphuric acid is not a nice substance to handle. Dusting with finely pulverized cyanamid has proved effective against wild mustard in Europe. Used in this way, cyanamid contains 22 per cent of nitrogen to give the grain a boost.

Canadian Garden Service

Even in the warmer sections of Canada it is quite possible to have a splendid garden from a matter of fact more Canadian gardens are damaged by too early rather than too late operations. Many flowers and vegetables make little growth during the cooler spring weather and very often
there is fatal damage from frost.
In any case, however, even if the main plantings have been made of flowers and vegetables there are still plenty of things to plant which will come on after the first bloom or first vegetables are over. Experienced gardeners in recent years have been purposely holding back a portion of lettuce, spinach, carrot and other vegetable seeds so that the harvesting season may be extended
just that much longer.

Late Plantings

Early June is the ideal time in most of Canada to plant seed of those hot weather things like melon, cucumber, medium or late corn and beans. It is not safe in many sections to set out celery, tomato, cabbage and pepper plants much earlier. There is still plenty of time to plant Dahlia, Gladiolus and Cannas bulbs or corns.

The late gardener is offered a short cut in started plants. Now-days it is possible to secure almost any plant, including many of the common vegetables, well in flats. A supply of these can be taken to the summer cottage on the first trip in June and with a little luck they will supply salad material when the family moves into summer quarters in July or August. With these started plants and with late gardens generally a little quick acting fertilizer applied carefully according to directions will push growth along amazingly.

Window Boxes

A brown or green stained window
box overflowing with gaily blooming flowers is within the range of almost every person. Here lack of ground space does not matter. Even the lofty apartment dweller is able to satisfy a gardening ambition.
Success is easily obtained provided two or three points are kept in mind. This sort of gardening is highly intensive with many more plants to the square foot than would be grown under ordinary conditions.
This means that very rich soil should be used and in addition a fairly frequent application of chemical fertilizer during the season. The box must be of fair depth, at least seven inches of soil being available.
Being exposed on all sides to drying winds, a thorough watering once a day is advised.

The box should be as long as the window and should be arranged so that the top of it is almost flush with the windowsill. If higher, the foliage of the plants will soon fill up most of the window. There must be holes in the bottom to provide drainage, and also a layer of gravel, cinders, broken crockery or similar material for the same purpose.

Along the front trailing Nasturtium,
Geranium Ivy, Lobelia, Alyssum
and similar plants are put in, with Petunias, Ageratums, Begonias,
Ferns, Geraniums and other plants especially recommended for this purpose further back. Shelter from the sun for a day or two should be provided until the plants get established. The same treatment and planting materials will be used with hanging pots.

WOOLLEN INDUSTRY
ON SOUND FOOTING

The knitted goods industry in Western Canada had its beginning as early as 1882 when the Lord Selkirk settlers established at Red

River the Buffalo Wool Company.
Here wool from the buffalo was made into shawls and other articles of wearing apparel, some of which were shipped to England. For a time it prospered, but as is the case with many industries even today, it lacked a market close to home and soon was compelled to close.

From time to time in the early
'80s small woolen mills operated in the West and in '85 or thereabouts worsted cloth was produced near Calgary. About the same time a mill in St. Boniface employed about 40 hands.

At the present time there are 15
concerns in the Prairie Provinces making more than 20 different articles from wool and the industry is at last on a sound footing. Its expansion, of course, depends upon the support received from merchants in its immediate territory, practically no export business being done.

Dale Carnegie
5-Minute BiographiesAuthor of "How to Win Friends and Influence People."He Knew the Telephone Numbers of More Beautiful Girls Than Any Man in History

Florenz Ziegfeld knew the telephone numbers of more beautiful girls than any of man living. In his Blue Book of Beauty were listed the names, addresses and telephone numbers of thousands of glamorous girls. Fifty or sixty aspiring young Venuses paraded before his critical glance every day.

He was proud of the fact that he was called the Glorifier of the American Girl. It was a title richly deserved. He often took some drab little girl no one had ever looked at twice and transformed her into a stage into a dazzling creature of mystery and seduction. Form and grace—these alone were the coveted passport to the Ziegfeld stage.
The glamor was supplied by Ziegfeld himself.

Ziegfeld was as regal in his ex-
travagances as an Oriental potentate.
He squandered millions of dollars on costumes, combining the markets of Europe and India and Asia
for the most beautiful fabrics money could buy. Even the lining of dresses had to be of the finest silk,
for he claimed no woman could feel really beautiful unless she just had beautiful cloth against her skin.

He did everything on a lavish scale. Although he communicated with hundreds of people he never troubled to dictate a letter. Telegrams and cables fluttered in his wake like autumn leaves in a gale of wind. Wherever he went, he carried with him a telegram book
and he used to get on a train at Grand Central Terminal and use a whole page of telegram blanks before he reached 125th Street.

Incredible as it seems, he actually sat in the orchestra during recharacters and sent telegrams to people across the footlights. He sent telegrams to people who were within range of his voice. He once leaned out of his window and yelled at a man in the window opposite: "Say,

I sent you a telegram. Why haven't you answered it?"

It was almost impossible for him to walk past a telephone booth without stopping to call up a dozen names, and he got out of bed almost every morning at six o'clock
in order to telephone his staff.

He could scheme for hours to save seventeen or eighteen dollars,
and the next day, he'd drop a hundred thousand dollars in Wall Street without batting an eye. He once borrowed five thousand dollars from Ed Wynn and spent that five thousand, borrowed money to hire
a private train to carry him across the continent.

He made women feel beautiful by the sheer power of his chivalry and consideration. On opening night, every girl in his chorus received a box of flowers from him. Even old and half-demented women who applied to him for jobs were treated with the same consideration he showed the rest.

He paid most of his famous stars
an average of $5,000 a week; often,
at the end of the season they had more money in the bank than he himself had.

When he started in the show business, chorus girls were getting $30
a week; but under his profligate reign, feminine pulchritude reached a market price of $125 a week.
Ziegfeld's first venture into show business was made at the precocious age of fourteen. Running away from home he became a trapeze rider and fancy shooter in Buffalo Bill's Wild West Show.

At the age of twenty-five he was cleaning up a fortune as manager to Sandow, the bulky strong man of the naughty Nineties.

Two years later, he was in London—broke—without a shilling to his name. He'd staked his luck to Monte Carlo and with a turn of the wheel he had lost his shirt.
Being penniless never worried this great entrepreneur. By the sheer witchery of his manner, he got together another show and sailed back in triumph to America with the most sensational star in Europe

—the vivacious, scintillating, the palpitating Anna Held — the Mae
West of her day.

The show-bunny producers in America had been cabling and pleading with Anna Held to come to New York. They had tempted her with extravagant offers. Yet it was Florenz Ziegfeld, only twenty-seven years old, practically unknown, and without a dime in his pocket, who walked into her dressing room, charmed her, got her name on a contract and started skyrocketing to fame.

Anna Held was an immediate sensation. She took America by storm. Corsets, face powder, hats, perfumes, horses, cocktails, puppies
and cigars were named in her honor.
She was toasted in champagne from coast to coast. And within a year, Florenz Ziegfeld married her.

Many years later, after he had divorced Anna Held, he fell statu-isly in love with Billie Burke. The very day he met her, he bought out an entire flower shop and sent the complete stock to her house—sent her everything from sweet peas and orchids and carnations to the orange trees in the window. And when Billie Burke told him that she had tried to thank him by telephone but had not been able to because his line was busy, he had a golden phone installed with a special ring
for her private use.

Ziegfeld loved indecision. He hated to make up his mind. He used to keep a box of licorice drs
on his desk; and when a friend asked him if he really liked licorice
he said: "I'll tell you why I eat them. They're all black, so I don't have to make up my mind which color I like best."

He hired most of the famous comedians in the world for his Folies; but he himself never laughed at his antics. Neither Ed Wynn nor Eddie Cantor nor Will Rogers could make him crack a smile. He was so cool that his actors gave him
the nickname of "Ice Water."

Ziegfeld died in 1923 in California, and as he slipped into the delirium of death, he imagined he was being revived. He staged it at a white hospital room, his orchestra
was only a radio, and for a stage crew he had nothing but his private valet. His lips were parched, and his eyes were glowing with fever, but he sat up in bed and shouted his directions to an invisible cast.

"Curtain!" he cried. "Fast Music!
Lights! Ready for the last finale!"
And finally he murmured: "Great!
The show looks good..." The show
... looks ... good ...

SCHOOLS

OUT

For nearly twenty million Canadian children this is an important time of the year. Schools out—soon will be everywhere and the long summer vacation is beginning. Much criticism has been leveled at our school system. It is charged with not fitting the children to the jobs when they are through school. Without stopping to debate the question whether or not that is the prime purpose of any school except a farm or trade school, let us look at another side of the picture. What do Canadian children actually get out of their schools besides book-learning?

It seems pretty clear that they get a social outlook on life as a whole which the unfortunate children of the rich, educated by private tutors or in "elite" private schools never get. In the public school every child finds his or her own level, of all social and economic strata, it is a stupor younger man who does not learn that human nature is the same whether one's father is a banker or a boot-maker. AN IMPROPER METHOD
(The Hanna Herald)

Blanket debt legislation is ill-advised, unfair and harmful. Alberta people need not expect no permanent advantage from such laws. On the contrary they will do irreparable harm.

Most people are honest. The great majority of debtors want to pay. Alberta people are not the chiselers and defaulters that they now appear to be before the eyes of Canada and of the world.

There are a considerable number of Alberta farmers, however, who simply cannot meet their mortgage obligations. Bad crops and low prices over half a dozen years have robbed them of their earning power. These people must have special consideration.

The way Manitoba and Saskatchewan tackled the problem of farm mortgage indebtedness was reasonable and sensible. First they got the interest rate cut to six per cent, which is where it should be. Then they arranged with the lending institutions for adjustments in instances where arrears of interest had accumulated. This enabled the debtor name from the role of those in arrears and gave him a fresh start and a new encouragement.

In Saskatchewan alone fifteen million dollars were written off mortgage indebtedness through common-sense co-operation, and a comparatively small amount was relieved from debtors' backs in Manitoba.

In Alberta today no debtor knows for sure whether he has been relieved of a cost of accumulated indebtedness. Blanket debt legislation has been a curse rather than a blessing.

A man who can pay should pay. A man who can't pay should be aided. Blanket debt legislation does not work that way. A plan of compromise and adjustment does work that way.

Alberta is not completely down and out—sunk for all time. This province can and will come back. The time will come when our farmers will again secure credit. That is something our people should never forget.

So let us handle the present problems of debt in a reasonable, sensible and decent manner. Let us follow sound British tradition and example. Let us forget this South American idea of default and blanket debt legislation. Such a move is a step in progressive human degeneration.

WILL AGAIN
CLAIM VICTIMS

With the automobile season again opening up to full tempo, it would not be amiss to point out that traffic deaths and injuries are increasing at a steady rate. Investigations conducted by police separated from investigating bodies into the causes of automobile accidents reveal an almost parallel increase in speed and crashes. Failure of the human factor to keep pace with the rapid advance in automobile designing is the answer to the query, "Why more accidents?" asks an exchange.

Automotive engineers have increased the horsepower of their products, but the horsepower of many drivers has not increased. It wasn't as much of a menace when 30 miles an hour was the mechanical limit of an automobile, but with a possible speed of from 60 to 80 miles an hour an irresponsible driver at the controls becomes a potential murderer.

There are fools of course, permitted to drive high-speed cars and very often blameless individuals have to pay the penalty—fools who like the thrill of hazards—fools who insist on driving while under the influence of liquor—smart young fools who want to show off, and so on. There is another class of drivers—people who are neither foolishly drunk, careless or showy, but who are not qualified to drive automobiles at high speed. We refer to those whose mental reactions are not quick enough to cope with emergencies which constantly occur in heavy traffic. These are nervous types, panicky people whose minds are confused when clearness of thought is imperative. Sixty miles an hour means nearly 100 feet a second. Such a speed demands a cool head and a quick mental reaction to rapidly changing situations.

There are those who ignore and disregard all rules and laws of the road every day. Some are ignorant in regard to these laws; some break these laws because they have been getting away with it—they can do as they please on the streets and highways. But, that is just what causes many accidents—when they get where the laws are enforced, they make a slip and are up against it—they can't recall right from wrong quickly enough to avoid an accident. Where, if they school themselves to the right way while at home, instinct will cause the right reaction when away from home.

The rules and laws of the road apply also to the driver of a horse or team, a rider of a bicycle or a pedestrian.

LOCAL NOTES

A two-weeks' music course, sponsored by the University department of extension is being arranged for July 19—31. Mr. Viggo Kihl will be the tutor.

Mr. Gordon Graham is away to Lethbridge this week at the convention being held there. He is representing the Wainwright and Chauvin branches.

Surely somebody slipped up in town last week! We failed to notice the town Hall flag flying half-mast in memory of the late Sir Robt. Borden!

Mrs. W. Milner was in Edmonton last week attending the funeral of her baby granddaughter.

Mr. and Mrs. Alec Adams arrived back on Saturday from their trip to Calgary and Banff where Mr. Adams was attending the annual druggists' convention. They report an enjoyable week down south.

Dr. H. C. Wallace was over to Ponoka on Sunday, and the doctor now reports that his eldest son Douglas, who has been so seriously ill from pneumonia for the past several weeks, is happily on the mend and we hope to see Doug around among us again shortly.

Ed. Turnbull, of Heath, is leaving this week for the coast. He will chauffeur the new car for Len Dolphin who leaves to reside there.

Quite a number of our local gardeners are in trouble these days with a blight on the bushes and trees—due possibly to the earlier dry weather.

This week seen Messrs. G. Johnson, of Lethbridge, and S. Fry and H. Taylor driving away from the Bruner service station with their new Dodge sedans.

Mr. Dick Mackay is now home again after spending some weeks in Turner Valley building a new dance hall and picture show house there.

CONTINUATION OF

TOWN COUNCIL

sufficient for the purpose of acquiring its gas utility.

The secretary be instructed to write each firm which has submitted tenders for the supply of pipe, as to its attitude towards accepting town gas debentures in full or part payment of its account.

The secretary be instructed to write the firm which has tendered for the labor along similar lines.

I contacted Mr. Sam Smith in Edmonton on the 4th inst. and as a director of the Maple Leaf Oil Company, he assured me that his Company was willing and anxious to conclude an arrangement with the town for its gas supply. He stated that his President would meet the town officials on any date set for that purpose.

I would urge that the necessary meeting of the inspectors in regard to a debenture issue be called at an early date, and, if it is their desire, that we proceed with all possible speed to bring this gas utility matter to a successful conclusion.

A number of points in this report were talked over, and following explanations and answers to questions, Coun. Lismore's resolution that the report be accepted and the suggestions contained therein carried out was adopted.

In this connection, therefore, the letters as suggested will be written by the secretary, and in due time the public meeting with regard to the raising of the necessary debentures (if such is the ultimate outcome of the whole affair) will be called.

shifted from its own shoulders to those of the municipalities responsible which really are its own.

The convention decided to recommend that uniformity of residential qualifications should govern all real estate awards, and suggested that a period of two years domicile be necessary for such public assistance could be secured. I think we should not be afraid to say that uniformity of regulation will be better for the provincial government and for ourselves too.

Need of having federal or provincial authorities provide for a home for aged indigent women who are a charge on municipalities was urged by the convention. It was suggested that a home be erected for them.

Mr. C. A. Bassit of Edmonton has accepted a position in the Wainwright Pharmacy.

A new school district has appeared on the map. Last week saw the start on the buildings of Gerald school district No. 9493 situated on the south west corner of Mr. D. W. Hansen's farm north of town. J. G. Moffat has been appointed senior trustee. The school was named after Gerald Moffat who was the first child born in the district.

TEN YEARS AGO

During the electrical storm which visited the district last week, the home of Mr. Geo. Clark of Fabyan was struck by lightning. The chimney was slightly damaged.

Mr. J. W. Stuart has improved the appearance of his home and buildings by a couple of coats of paint.

Extensive plans are underway for the big Diamond Jubilee celebration on July 1st.

Mr. G. Siddall added a verandah to his cottage at House Lake.

Little Norma Patterson was stricken suddenly with appendicitis last week. She is now improving nicely in the Wainwright hospital after her operation.

A kitchen shower was held on Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Mockford in honor of Miss Gladys Mockford who is a bride-elect of this month. Among those present were: Patricia Eberhart, Alana Polvin, Olwyn Jones, Miss Hough, Violet Smith, Mrs. Spornitz and June, Mrs. Herbert, Jr. and son, Mrs. T. Herbert, Mrs. W. J. Bartlett, Mrs. E. L. B. McLeod and Olga Bartlett.

Miss Marion Watson and Miss Marjorie Hollworth spent the weekend at Miss Watson's home in Kinross.

Mr. Stanley Davis of Provost spent the week-end visiting with his parents in this district.

The road gang is busy widening and improving the road around Clear lake.

Owing to the rain the Ladies' Aid was postponed until this Thursday, June 17th and the meeting will be held at the hall.

The Legion Notice Board

As we write this the Alberta branches of the Canadian Legion are holding their annual convention in Lethbridge. The Hon. Major Powers, Minister of Pensions and National Health is to address the convention on Wednesday and, judging by recent activities, will have considerable explaining to do in respect to the Government's attitude in answer to the recommendations of the War Veterans' Assistance Commission.

Our President, Comrade Graham, is representing Chauvin as well as this branch and will, no doubt, have an interesting and instructive report to present on his return.

Dissatisfaction is being expressed that so many provincial conventions are being held in the south of the province. Unfortunately for the northern branches they are greatly outnumbered in membership by the larger branches in the south, and consequently outvoted when the question of the next annual convention comes before the convention.

Another great War Time figure has passed on in the person of Sir Robert Borden—premier of Canada during the war years—and for whom flags flew half masted last week-end.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of Mr. Edward Monaghan, who passed away June 14th, 1936.

Two years have passed since his parting.
Oh! How sad we were on that fatal day.

When he went on; and we had to stay.
Oh! How often I can feel the touch of his gentle hand.

As he guided me through my childhood years.
But the time had to come; as it will to us all;

To leave the ones he cherished so dear;
And reap his reward on that other shore.

His Daughter & Loving Wife.

How Can I?

Q.—How can I mend a tall candle that has broken in the center, and is otherwise good?

A.—Light an old candle of the same color, and let the drippings of wax seal the broken place in the other candle. Any surplus wax where the repair has been made can be scraped off easily with a knife.

Q.—How can I prevent small scuffs on a floor from slipping on a polished floor?

A.—Cut a piece of oil cloth slightly smaller than the rug and place it under the rug, shiny side up.

Q.—How can I whiten boiled rice?

A.—Squeeze a little lemon juice into the boiling rice. It will whiten it and also improve the flavor.

Q.—How can I keep the hands from perspiring while sewing?

A.—When the hands perspire while sewing keep a dish or pan of bran nearby. Rub the hands with a little bran from time to time, removing with a clean towel.

Q.—How can I make poached eggs hold together?

A.—By adding a half teaspoonful of vinegar to the water.

Q.—Should a baby be allowed to use a so-called pacifier?

A.—One authority says that a child should not use a pacifier, as it strains the muscles of the throat, causes adenoids and spoils the contour of the baby's mouth.

Q.—How can I make the beads slip more easily when stringing them?

A.—When stringing beads, dip the needle in water frequently. The beads will slip on more easily, and will also cling together.

Q.—How can I lessen the odor of boiled cabbage?

A.—Boil two or three stalks of celery with the cabbage. This will lessen the odor and also improve the flavor.

Q.—How can I polish tinware?

A.—By rubbing briskly with a freshly cut piece of onion.

Q.—How can I prevent a stove from rusting, that is to be stored for the summer months?

A.—The stove will not rust if it is given a thin coating of three parts melted lard and one part resin, before putting it away.

Q.—How can I make a meringue pie fluffy?

A.—Add one teaspoonful of baking powder to the well-beaten whites of two eggs before adding the sugar, and the meringue will be nice and fluffy.

Q.—What can I use as a substitute for starch?

A.—Water drained from either rice or spaghetti can be used as a starch substitute.

LITTLE SAVINGS...
FINANCE
MORTGAGE LOANS

TENS of thousands of Canadian farms and homes benefit from first mortgage loans made possible by the accumulated savings of Life Insurance policyholders.

For every borrower, there are six thrifty people who supply the necessary funds.

This fact affords a striking illustration of the "double duty" performed by Life Insurance dollars. Not only do they ensure financial security for the men, women and children of Canada, but they also help to build and finance their farms and homes.

Life Insurance companies exercise the greatest care in the selection of properties upon which mortgage loans are made. To safeguard the savings of policyholders, security of principal and interest is and must always be the first consideration.

A BAFFLING MYSTERY THAT BEGAN BEHIND A COUNTER

Nikolai Noleuse, a departmental silk manager at Oxtone, a big London silk emporium, is discovered by Phyllis Varley, first assistant in the Chinese Silk Department, lying dead, his body wrapped in a roll of Chinese silk beneath her counter. Superintendent James Beck, of Scotland Yard, finds that Noleuse has been strangled and later discovers that the man has been particularly interested in Suchoy silk. Professor Karmen, at the British Museum, tells Beck that he had seen the mask in China, where he found him inquiring the whereabouts of Tao Li, a silk weaver of Suchoy. The Professor tells the Superintendent that it is believed that Tao Li has been tortured and since died because he knew the secret of the whereabouts of "The Five Eyes of Medley chin," a jewel which has been pillaged from a temple in the mountains and which is sought by members of the Tong, a Chinese secret society. Beck forms the opinion that the weaver committed the secret to the silk he was weaving at the time he became aware that the Tong were on his heels.

Beck goes out that night to dine with Peter Oxtone, managing director of the silk store, and after he has had Oxtone receive a visit from the Tartar who threatens evil to his daughter unless he instructs the police to cease their visit at the store.

(Now Read On)

Ling Foo had received no further information concerning the operations of their rivals in the hunt for the secret, and to Sen Yat Soh's way of thinking no news was not good news. He was growing anxious. He wanted to know who it was Wu Ti had met in the store last night. It was wise, of course, of Wu Ti to clear out as quickly as possible with the silk in his possession, but Sen had an idea that the man in the store might have been on a mission similar to that of Wu Ti and it was a pity his identity was not known. That morning too, there had been the visit of a young man inquiring for the late tenant. Ling Foo had not been sure, but he thought that the young man resembled one of the assistants at Oxtone... the one who had chased him from the store.

be a small wire mattress on the floor. Beside the mattress stood an evil-visaged Chinaman while beside the opposite wall one hand controlling a master-electric switch, transformer and rheostat stood the man who had answered his inquiry at the door that morning. Philip understood the significance of the scene. It was a modern form of Eastern torture. These fiends had sought the assistance of electricity and the woman on the wire frame was being subjected to various forms of electric shocks.

"Oh! swine," cried Philip, launching himself into the room like an arrow from a bow.

The man bending over the woman had turned at the sound of the door being flung open but his face during those seconds remained impassive. Whether he had been anticipating Philip's attack it was impossible to tell but he was not quick enough to prevent the young man's fist crashing against his unprotected jaw. Sen Yat Soh spun sideways like a top, but the fact that there had been little resistance to the blow was fatal for Philip, who, unable to control his momentum found himself falling on the electric torture frame on the floor.

Ling Foo at the wall switch saw his opportunity. He swung the rheostat handle sharply over. The woman on the frame uttered another piercing shriek before she passed into unconsciousness. Philip felt as if a dozen miles had kicked him in the head simultaneously. He felt utterly incapable of movement and looked up into Sen Yat Soh's evil face without hope.

CHAPTER XXIII

MORNING OF MANY MOODS

Peter Oxtone sat in his office frowning across at Supl. Beck. "I think, Superintendent," he announced, "that I'm growing somewhat weary of this business. I had imagined that the whole affair would have been cleared up days ago, but what have you done? So far as I can see Mr. Beck—and you must forgive me if I speak plainly—you have done nothing. First a valuable member of my staff is murdered; then another equally valuable employee disappears and now, this morning, I hear that young Slater is missing. If affairs continue like this I shall have no more left. I'm afraid I must ask you for some assurance in this matter Mr. Beck."

The Superintendent had every reason to be irritable, and on this occasion it was not due to a cut chin or to cold bacon. He had been told by ten o'clock that Philip Slater had not turned in to work; that an inquiry at the address where he had a room had elicited the information that Slater arrived home late last night and had left again very early without giving him any word as to his whereabouts. On the place was as silent as a vault, and the young man was about to step forward towards the staircase when the blood seemed to freeze in his veins. From somewhere at the top of the house a woman screamed. It was no ordinary scream—it was a scream of such terror and horror that he remembered the woman's face at the window. The time for action had come.

Discarding caution as if it had been a cumbersome coat Philip dashed towards the stairs and reached the landing. DRESS UP YOUR CAKES

When in doubt serve cake. That's a safe motto for every menu planner for certainly we are a nation of cake eaters. There are the cake standards—layer, loaf and cup cakes. And then there are the other members of the cake family, such as Boston cream pie, cottage pudding and chocolate rum. They are all five star favorites for just about every eating occasion except breakfast. You can dress up these delicacies like magic with a sauce or frosting made of sweetened condensed milk—added, if you want, to layers or loaves from the corner store. Just add crushed fruit or other flavoring to the magic milk and presto changeo, you have a festive dessert that tastes as good as it looks.

Fruitarian Sauce

2/3 cup sweetened condensed milk
1/4 cup lemon juice
1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
1 cup fruit (drained crushed pineapple, sliced fresh strawberries or 2 bananas cut in small cubes)
Thoroughly blend sweetened con-night and taken away a quantity of your Chinese silk. You have to admit, Mr. Oxtone, that under the circumstances you have only yourself to blame. You speak of talking plainly. So do I. No other course is left open to me, but whether you like it or not, I'm going to proceed with this case along my own lines. What happens as a result of that, I and I alone, will assume responsibility.

Peter Oxtone's face, that a moment ago had been outrageously red, paled somewhat.

"But what about the threat?" he demanded nervously. "You know what the threat was. If anything should happen..."

"Nothing will happen if I'm left to do the job in my own way. I was a fool to take any notice of you before. But then I've always had an absurdly soft heart. I've realized before today that it would be my undoing very long. Now about the affair last night. What quantity of silk was taken?"

Peter Oxtone consulted a report that lay on his desk before him. "Three rolls of Suchoy silk, valued at $1500, were missing from the neighborhood of fifteen pounds."

"I suppose the rolls would have been fairly substantial?"

"No, not very. One man could have taken them out without much trouble. Of course, he might have noticed walking through the streets."

"He wouldn't," snapped the Superintendent. "He'd have a car parked nice and handy. How did he get in?"

Peter Oxtone shook his head. "I suppose in the same way that Noleuse's car got in," he said weakly. "The watchman says there is no sign of anything being out of order."

"It was probably the same man," decided Beck, dully. "Now, if I'd had my men on duty as I'd arranged..."

"Yes, I know," protested Oxtone, "but can't we do something about it? It's not the silk I'm worrying about, it's my staff. I can't think they're concerned in all this."

"They're not," said Beck, decisively. "I believe that their disappearance has some connection, though; particularly that of Miss Varley. As for Slater, I don't know what to think. You may be interested to know that round about midnight last night he phoned the Yard and left a message for that man that Noleuse had been worrying me for hours. From what I gathered he must have seen someone in the store and went after the fellow. He said something about being trussed up for his pains but managed apparently, to free himself. Then he informed the desk sergeant that he was following up a clue and that when he found anything he would let me know."

Peter Oxtone's face visibly brightened.

Cream Dressing

A cooked dressing with cream will be found excellent for serving with vegetable, meat or fish salads. Mix together one-half tablespoon salt, one-half tablespoon mustard, three-quarters tablespoon sugar and one tablespoon flour. Then add the yolks of two eggs, beaten lightly, three tablespoons melted butter, three-quarters cup of cream or rich milk and one-quarter cup vinegar. Stir constantly in double boiler, cooking until the mixture becomes thick. Strain and cool.

Bath, England, may try silencing auto horns for 24 hours.

dened milk, lemon juice and grated lemon rind. Stir until mixture thickens. Add fruit. Makes about 2 cups. May be thinned with water to any desired consistency. Serve on sponge cake, angel food or cottage pudding, or serve, chocolate rum style with lady fingers. (8 inch) layers or 2 1/2 cups confectioners' (4X) sugar
2 teaspoon cocoa
Blend together sweetened condensed milk, strong black coffee and vanilla. Add confectioners' sugar and cocoa, which have been sifted together. Blend thoroughly. Spread on cold cake. Makes enough frosting to cover tops of 2 (8 inch) layers or top and sides of loaf cake, or about 18 cup cakes.

Pools Seek Wheat Board With Selling Offices Overseas

REGINA.—Suggestions the commission seek development of overseas market by visiting Great Britain, Ireland, and European countries; arguments for and against wheat boards and criticism of wheat pools were received by the Turgeon royal grain commission during its sittings here last week. The commission is expected to adjourn at the end of this week until September or October.

On behalf of the Saskatchewan government, Hon. George Spence, minister of agriculture, recommended the commission visit the Old Land countries with a view to developing sales of Canadian wheat. A satisfied customer was the best way to retain markets and learning of requirements at first hand was the best method of approach, Mr. Spence suggested.

Returning to the witness stand after giving some evidence the week previous, Hon. W. R. Motherwell, M.P. for Melville, urged the present wheat board be authorized to receive and handle wheat until the present inquiry report is made. James O. Knox, Turgeon, president of the Saskatchewan association of rural municipalities, submitted a resolution asking for appointment of a wheat board.

Nine farmers opposed all forms of compulsory marketing agencies and supported the open market and futures method of trading. Some of them recognized the right of others to voluntary pools and boards but declared they wanted to retain their individual liberty to sell their grain as they wished. Private grain companies, it was contended, had given good service.

The nine were George W. Stockton of Carlyle, Harold McNally of Regina, L. R. Zurovski of Southey, T. A. McCusker of Regina, G. F. Connell of Regina, W. E. Jones of Yellowknife, Joseph Marshall of Yellowknife, W. J. Orchard of Tregurva, and Ira B. Cushing of Bechard.

Criticism of the wheat pools came from William Robinson, a farmer of the Ituna district, former director of the Saskatchewan Co-operative Elevator company and former delegate to Saskatchewan pool meetings. He declared the pools failed to evolve a marketing system superior to the open market and futures method of trading.

Mr. Robinson urged reorganization of the pools as co-operative elevator companies and establishment of a federal department to foster wheat sales in foreign countries. He suggested a government guaranteed minimum wheat price which, he contended, could be paid through present facilities. He had no objections to voluntary boards or pools but thought government supervision of the Winnipeg Grain Exchange should be undertaken to prevent unwarranted speculation and possible price manipulation.

Recommendations of the Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta wheat pool organizations were submitted by J. H. Wesson, president of the Saskatchewan pool. They included a national wheat board to handle the entire crop with a subsidy to growers in times of depression.

The board would pay an initial and interim payments, pay a uniform price to all growers, establish overseas offices to develop export sales and keep the door open for co-operation between exporting and importing countries in dealing with world problems. A processing tax of 50 cents a bushel—netting $12,000,000 a year on home-consumed wheat—would be one means of partially building up a subsidy fund, he suggested.

There must be either the futures method of trading or a wheat board handling all grain, said Mr. Wesson under examination. A board could not achieve any more than a wheat pool in normal years but he thought it would be more effective in abnormal years. No board could alter the law of supply and demand, he admitted, or stop price competition without international agreement. If a board were established and the Winnipeg Grain Exchange closed, then the Liverpool market would be the major price factor.

When it was suggested use of the futures market by the pools was not consistent with their criticism of that method, Mr. Wesson said the pools did not use the market because they liked it. The Winnipeg futures market was used because under the circumstances the pool officials believed it in the interest of producers. He recognized there were farmers who preferred to sell their wheat on the open market and opposed a compulsory board.

Urging a wheat board and a minimum price, Walter E. Wiggins of Winnipeg submitted the views of the Communist Party of Canada. A marketing board could not cure all ills, he said. Eventually farmers should re-establish the pooling system and take full charge of marketing, he declared.

MODERN WOMEN

Mrs. William P. Barie, Jr., has been awarded the seventh annual gold medal for the most distinguished service to Brooklyn during the year.

Forty-two dolls only nine inches high have been dressed by Mrs. Olivia Blanchard of New Orleans in the costumes of the wives of early Louisiana Governors and other prominent women of colonial days. Both costumes and headpieces have been reproduced from bits of old lace and brocades and imitation jewels. The dolls are sometimes exhibited in schools.

In addition to cellophane manikins and paper heads used in shop window displays, Mrs. Lillian Grenier has invented fingertip tools which she says expedite work of many kinds, particularly painting. She thinks the best results from the use of her thimble tools will be in the field of child education and in hospitals. Artists, she says, will soon be painting with ten brushes instead of one.

Mrs. William Howard Taft, widow of one of our Presidents, and Miss Eliza Seidmore, sister of a former American Consul at Yokohama are responsible for Washington's beautiful cherry blossoms. It was Miss Seidmore's idea to introduce cherry trees in this country and it was Mrs. Taft who ordered the first lot, later greatly increased by a gift from Dr. Takamine, Japanese chemist.

An "adopt a ship" program is being sponsored by the Women's Organization for the Advancement of the American Merchant Marine of which Mrs. Arthur M. Tode is president. Through this program, children especially inland ones, become ship enthusiasts, they learn about products that are carried around the world, about rates, ports of call, harbor rules, etc.

Miss Rose Schneiderman, president of the New York Women's Trade Union League and a former member of the N.Y.A. Labor Advisory Board, has been appointed secretary of the New York State Department of Labor.

 A man stopped his car on an incline on a city street while he made a business call; the brake was released, possibly by children. The car ran on to the sidewalk and struck a young mother wheeling her baby in a carriage. The baby was killed and the mother was so badly injured that her leg had to be amputated. The jury awarded $12,000 damages against the owner of the car. You can't afford to own a car if you can't afford insurance. Accidents to persons can be covered up to $50,000 for $12 per year. A number of our golf enthusiasts journeyed to Hughenden on Sunday for their tourney there. Among these were Mr. and Mrs. T. Heathfield, Dr. and Mrs. Springett, Mr. and Mrs. L. Mitchell, Mr. H. Schlitt and Mr. and Mrs. G. Clark. The latter brought home one of the prizes, too!

The several rains of last week were all very welcome and although not continuous they were equal to a fairly long steady fall. We are informed that in many places these saved the day for the crop, but still another fall or two will be welcomed.

The annual picnic of the Gilt Edge Park Assoc. is being arranged to be held on Wednesday, July 7th, when a big crowd is being provided for. Their advt. appears elsewhere.
